Foreign portfolio investors continue to pull out money from the Indian markets exerting pressure on Rupee value and oil prices are anticipated to remain elevated which will further impact on CAD.

Quarterly Movement of Current Account Deficit (USD $)

✓ It is expected that the CAD will widen as the oil prices are anticipated to remain elevated.

Way Forward

- ✓ Further, there may be impact on the prospective exports in view of slowdown in US as the US is the biggest export destination for Indian goods and services.
- ✓ The another factor which may widen the CAD going forward is higher fed rates as the foreign portfolio investors (FPI) continue to pull out money from the Indian markets exerting adverse pressure on Rupee value
